

Boston College Law School
Digital Commons @ Boston College Law School

Boston College Law School Faculty Papers

January 2003

A Closed Mind is a Wonderful Thing to Lose

Ruth-Arlene W. Howe

Boston College Law School, rutharlene.howe@bc.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://lawdigitalcommons.bc.edu/lfsp>

Part of the Elder Law Commons, and the Family Law Commons

Recommended Citation

Ruth-Arlene W. Howe. "A Closed Mind is a Wonderful Thing to Lose." Cardozo Women's Law Journal 9, no.2 (2003): 193-.

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Digital Commons @ Boston College Law School. It has been accepted for inclusion in Boston College Law School Faculty Papers by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Boston College Law School. For more information, please contact nick.szydowski@bc.edu.

A CLOSED MIND IS A WONDERFUL THING TO LOSE

RUTH ARLENE HOWE*

Several autumns ago, our Boston College Law School Lambda Chapter made a variety of buttons available to their members and interested supporters to wear. I was immediately drawn to a black button with white lettering that read: "A Closed Mind Is A Wonderful Thing to Lose." For more than three years, I have taken great pleasure in wearing it. It always provokes interest; often enthusiastic approval from those "Who get it!"

It is my earnest hope that those who read the essays and commentaries in this issue will be challenged and enlightened. These student essays are a wonderful tribute to the teaching skills of Maria Grahn-Farley. In her unwavering commitment to valuing, honoring, and respecting the perspectives and contributions of each student, she provides a model of a cooperative, collaborative approach to law teaching that others should emulate.

* Professor of Law, Boston College Law School.